Letter From the Editor

Chris Stevenson

It's been eight long months since you all have been treated to an edition of the TCKRA newsletter. Most of the delay has been directly attributable to the fact that your humble editor, me, is quite simply a lazy sot. Not really, but nobody wants to hear the actual reasons (the government shutdown, crisis in Syria, road conditions and housing deficiencies in the Eagle Ford Shale play).

A LOT has happened in the intervening period. Many races have been run. New races have been created; old races have changed. The Safari is now a semi-supported race. The CR100 turned ten years old. The MR340, Tour du Teche and Turkeyfest races are all becoming regular events on Texas paddlers' calendars.

The TCKRA has a new board and new officers for 2014. Back in April, Houston hosted the U.S.A. Canoe and Kayak Marathon Team Trials. And Texas just sent an U23 qualifier to Denmark for the ICF marathon world championships.

Paddling in Texas is just about a year-round sport and the season is about to turn over. As folks look back over the past year and look forward to a new season, please continue to support the TCKRA and its members. The club puts out this fantastic newsletter, coordinates all of the state championship races, organizes bi-annual river cleanups and is the only organization promoting canoe and kayak racing statewide. So please renew your memberships, go to the races and, most of all, get out there and paddle!

Paddler Profile

(Editor's Note: In each edition of the Newsletter we feature interesting and accomplished members of the Texas paddling community. If you would like to nominate someone to be featured in the Paddler Profile, please email their name and contact information to castevenson@gmail.com.)

This edition features Roy Tyrone.

TCKRA: Where are you from originally, where have you lived and where do you live now?

RT: I have always lived in the Texas Gulf Coast area. I now live in Pasadena.

TCKRA: How did you get started in paddle sport and racing?

RT: Tom Goynes and Wayne Walls (Don's uncle) were partners in a canoe store in Houston. I owned an Ouachita aluminum canoe and stopped by their store. They invited me to participate in an aluminum canoe race coming up in Dickinson. I finished in last place but I instantly loved the sport of canoe racing. The race was in October of 1970. In 1971 Robert Taylor and I won the USCA state championship. In those days the state championship was a series of races and the racer with the most points at the end of the year was the state champion.

TCKRA: What kinds of boats do you paddle?

RT: I am a single blade canoe racer. I prefer standardized classes like aluminum and USCA where all the competitors are paddling the same type of hull.

TCKRA: What kinds of paddles do you use?

RT: The ZRE Power Surge paddles are incredible. I prefer the smaller blade sizes.

TCKRA: What is your training regimen?

RT: I am 68 years old so I try to be careful and avoid injuries. I do strength training at a nearby gym. I might go paddling 3-4 times per week at an intense rate for about an hour. If a longer race is coming up I will increase the distance. I have some really wonderful, fun training partners. I do a small amount of jogging.

TCKRA: What does your training and racing calendar look like?

RT: Canoe racing is a time-consuming sport. I race in a lot of races. This year I will enter nearly all the major single blade Texas races, the TWS, and the Tour du Teche.

TCKRA: Where do you train most often?

RT: I live in Pasadena. Armand Bayou is a few minutes from my house. It has alligators, deer, osprey, all kinds of water birds, coyotes, etc. It is breathtaking to watch an osprey dive into the water, talons first and come up with a fish. It is breathtaking to watch a hawk diving and hitting some bird in the air that is nearly as big as it is. It is breathtaking to watch a wild coyote standing on the bank.

TCKRA: What kinds of food do you use during training and racing?

RT: I am a health food fanatic. I train throughout the year. Many years ago I had prostate cancer. A few years after receiving radiation treatment at MD Anderson the cancer came back with a vengeance and was growing at an extremely rapid rate. I was very scared. After doing a lot of research on the internet I went on an ultra healthy diet and the cancer began shrinking. Today my PSA is zero and the cancer has been gone for 10 years. During training runs and most races I do not drink plain water. I will usually have diluted orange juice (fortified with calcium). For longer, hotter races I might add a little magnesium citrate and salt. I sweat a lot and I have to drink a lot. I never get cramps when I follow this regimen.

TCKRA: What is your favorite place to paddle?

RT: Boundary Wilderness Canoe Area in Minnesota and Canada. Any pretty river or bayou.

TCKRA: What is your favorite race?

RT: I enjoy all of the races.

TCKRA: What do you enjoy most about paddling?

RT: To me, paddling is an incredibly beautiful, outdoors activity where you can enjoy nature and get exercise. Canoe racers are a special breed of people and they make wonderful friends.

TCKRA: What are your significant accomplishments in paddle sport (races finished, races won, records held, etc.)?

RT: In 1984 I paddled with Jerry Nunnery and won 1st overall in the TWS paddling an 18'6" canoe with single blade paddles. In 1979 I paddled with Scott McDonald and won 2nd overall and 1st USCA in the TWS in 38:16 paddling an 18'6" canoe with single blade paddles. Ted Jagen and I won 1st overall in the Martindale Triathlon. To the best of my memory, in 1971 Robert Taylor and I won 1st in every state championship points race. My wife, Priscilla, and I won a couple of mixed state championships. One of my more memorable family races was an aluminum state championship race in Waco. I was going to skip the race that year because I really did not have a partner. My 18 year old son asked me to race with him. John Bugge and Mike Shively had won 6 consecutive aluminum state championship races. My son and I were in 3rd for a good part of the race. The 2nd place team faltered and we moved up to 2nd place. Late in the race we passed Bugge & Shively and we held on to win the race by a few seconds.

TCKRA: Do you have any training or racing goals and, if so, what are they?

RT: At this stage of my life I primarily race for fun. Although I race for fun, I try to win every race that I possibly can.

TCKRA: What is your perspective on the state of paddlesport in Texas?

RT: Today there are 10 times as many racers as there were in the good ol' days. There has been a phenomenal growth in double blade paddling. The double blade athletes are incredible, there are lots of them, and they can paddle skinny, fast boats. There are many more adventure racers today. Sadly, at most races, there are only a small number of single blade racers.

TCKRA: Do you have any advice or words of wisdom for paddlers just starting out?

RT: Canoe racing is a time-consuming sport. Families and kids, jobs, etc., are more important than canoe racing. Allocate your time appropriately and do the best you can. Learn as much as you can from the experienced racers. Nearly everyone is willing to help. Try and make training runs with some of the experienced racers. Canoe racers are fantastic people and you will acquire many friends and memories.

TCKRA: Do you have any advice or words of wisdom for other racers who have been paddling for a while?

RT: When I had been paddling for 20 years I had a pretty ugly, inefficient stroke. I won a few races but I trained hard and I was not paddling up to my potential. If you have been racing for a while and you do not seem to be going as fast as you think you are capable of, then do something about it. Some people do not train with enough intensity on training runs. Some of the experienced racers have an inefficient paddle stroke

(just like I did). It is helpful to get experience paddling both ends of the canoe. Occasionally paddling in the stern will help you to become a better bow paddler. If you are primarily a stern paddler, paddling in the bow can definitely help you to make improvements in your stroke and help you to become an even better stern paddler.

TC'ing in the New Safari Era

Chris Stevenson

Rule changes were the big news in the Safari world in 2013 that changed the character of the race from virtually unsupported to semi-supported. The biggest general change was that TC's were now going to be allowed to give their racers food in addition to water, ice and the containers to hold them. There was lots of pre-race grumbling, especially from the tougher-is-better crowd, but at check-in and during the race everything felt basically the same to me. The new rules meant that racers would save a few pounds worth of food out of their boats and TC's would have to be on top of pre-arranged food handoffs at each checkpoint.

2013 was my second time to TC, both times for Erin Magee. In addition to the gallons of water, ice, jugs, bottles, coolers, cleaning supplies, transport crates and ice socks I now had canisters of Vitalyte, instant coffee, fresh fruit along with the typical Safari fare - energy bars, nuts, chips and candy. Erin didn't want any, but the option was there for some fresh and hot food from a drive-thru at any point. (Though she did get an ice cream bar at the Salt Water Barrier.)

So was it really that different for a TC? Well, yes and no. The same old stresses of being where you need to be when you need to be there with what you need to have are still there. The same surprising lack of time to sleep is still there. The waiting under bridges in the mud is still the same. The mosquitoes at the Wooden Bridge are still the same.

What's different is making hot coffee for your racer with a Jet Boil on the tailgate of your truck and trying to time it so that it is still hot (but not too hot) when they come in. What's different is the slight guilt from boosting half a dozen caramel flavored creamers from the coffee station at the Luling Bucee's. What's different is the locust effect Safari TC's had on the supply of Starbucks VIA coffee in the Hwy 80/183/87/185 corridor.

Not all of the differences are coffee related - there is also the "Ordering Dilemma." This is a new one for racers and TC's alike - TC's can now take food orders, right? Racers are hurting and maybe the only thought keeping them going is a craving for cheese enchiladas. For a racer, any small comfort is most welcome and with the new rules there is an endless variety of food you can get from your TC. So a racer will dream. The problem is, of course, that the TC's won't know the "order" in advance. And it's hard to whip up cheese enchiladas on demand with just a Jet Boil under the Hochheim Bridge at 4 a.m. I saw numerous times teams saying either "I want pizza at the next stop" or going through all of the offerings available right then "Let's see, do you have any peanut M&M's? No? Well what about a plain Hershey bar?" In short, it's now a lot easier to waste time at checkpoints "taking orders" with the new rules and some teams certainly did.

Now, I was TC'ing for a solo racer. I can only imagine the sorting that must have gone on with the Whataburger bags of taquitos on the 6-man boats. "Logan, did you have the bacon, egg and cheese or the potato, egg and cheese?" "Okay, now who wants picante sauce?"

What the new rules really mean for TC's at the end of the day is just more. More stuff to carry and remember. More stuff to prepare and deal with. All told, I'd peg it at about 20% more work than before. Does it make the race easier? Better? Worse? Now that's a discussion made for Paddle24Seven, if I ever heard one.

About the TCKRA

The Texas Canoe and Kayak Racing Association is a statewide club for persons interested in paddle sport racing. The primary focus of the club is USCA and ICF class marathon racing, but other disciplines of paddle sports are promoted through TCKRA's Race Calendar and Points Program.*

In 1971 a group of canoe paddlers with an interest in canoe and kayak racing joined together and formed the TCRA (which later evolved into the TCKRA). During the past years the organization has grown to one of the largest canoe and kayak clubs in the state. The club is now recognized as the voice for canoe racing in Texas and its members have gained national recognition. Each year the TCKRA participates in approximately 20 canoe races and the TCKRA also organizes and sponsors the Texas State Canoe and Kayak Racing Championship Series. These championship level race events compliment the other annual racing events by recognizing the top competitors in a variety of paddle sport disciplines and classes. Additionally, the TCKRA culminates the season by awarding the top overall paddlers of the year. This recognition is determined through the accumulation of TCKRA Points.*

Whether you are a novice paddler, intermediate or seasoned racer, TCKRA is a great way to meet new people, improve your skills and get out on the river. Our membership spans the state and varies widely by age, gender, skill-level and boat type; even our working careers and professions. We also share a great deal in common - the competitive spirit and an enduring love of the water.

Your annual dues help fund events and activities throughout the year and around the state. By joining the TCKRA you enjoy the following benefits:

- 4 championship races, (Unlimited, Aluminum, USCA and ICF)
- The Martindale Triathlon
- Race discounts for TCKRA members
- Spring and fall river cleanups
- Bi-Monthly newsletter
- Texas paddler directory
- Annual banquet
- Paddling clinics – free to TCKRA members
- 2 TCKRA decals for every member
- TCKRA Team and points competition
- A TCKRA membership will give you a voice in the racing community and allow us to continue to promote canoe and kayak racing in Texas.

Our members paddle kayaks and canoes crafted from wood, plastic, aluminum, carbon and Kevlar.
